Did Stenographic Stunts.

A large crowd witnessed the wonderful stenographic feats of Mr. Ruymond P. Kelley, of Chicago, last night in the Massey Business School.

With a few deft, rapid turns, Mr. Kelley accomplished stunts that held his audience breathless with amazement. He made a record speed of 251 words a minute. Blind-folded, he wrote 200 words a minute. He was dictated to by Professor H. R. Weaver, of fine college. He was also given dictation in Italian, of which he knows nothing, and in the negro dialect, both of which he read back in perfect accuracy. All the tests were timed with a stop watch to preserve a perfect record. As a freak of his wonderful development in stenography he wrote upside down and backwards, and transcribed all exactly as given. All was done with merely blackboard and crayons, in full view of everybody present.

After these marvelous stunts Mr. Kelley illustrated many points as to how to gain rapidly and accuracy, all in a few dash, signify and accuracy, all in a few dash, signify and accuracy, all in a few dash, signify and accuracy all the subject. The speaker closed with a short talk, in which he showed that there is a great demand for good stenographers of bath sexes. cight feet.

That fact is literally true, for as dancers the Morton family, are in the swinr with something doing every minute. Father Morton and Mother Morton belong to the cide of the swince of the cide of th to the old time school; to those palmy days of the slap stick and the knock days of the slap stick and the knock down of torn vest and soap suds, but they are c'ever and the gallery joined with the pit in extending to them the welcoming palm. Mr. Chandler's Farewell.

Rev. R. M. Chandler, former paster of on Sunday night. His farewell sermon that characterizes always the fond fareing in the extreme, and the speaker was often reduced to tears, as with faitering voice he bade a loving God-speed to the congregation he was preparing to leave. The subject of this, Mr. Chandler's last sermon, was "Faithful Unto Death," He spoke as one who had known and experienced much in his travels along the byways of life, as one who loved and was loved by his faithful friends, and who, at the parting of the ways was exceedingly sorrowful that the turning had come. Special singing was a part of the services, and this lent an additional touch of beauty and pathos to the parting scene. After the services had concluded, the congregation railled around their pastor, and wrung his hand with many a "God bless you" on his departure for a sojourn in a new and untried field.

Judge P. S. Grosscup, of the United States Circuit Court of Chicago, contributed a paper at the evening session on "The Popular Conscience" in a discussion of a united church and the national life. He said;

Judge Grosscup's Address.

Commingled with the nation's pondea commercial, and industrial life, is what nmy be called the benevolent side of the nation's life. But here, too, although the possessing thought is the individual home, there is at work the modern process that draws individual entities into common action. Behind the nation's life, moving it,

Behind the nation's life, moving it, lighting it up, ho.ding it together, the primal source of everything done is an unseen power. Like the great force behind nature, this primal unseen power behind the life of nations has shown itself in events. Up and down the coast of history, like head lands, these providential events stand out. The giving to this world of Lincoln was such an event. It was not accident that opened up to Lincoln the presidency, It was nothing Lincoln the presidency. It was nothing less than providence transferred to the affairs of men. Ah. the upseen life! affairs of men. Ah. the upseen life! Bursting in upon us on every hand, silently but triumphantly, as the bud bursts out of the bark. But the Churcha A united Church! What is its relation to this boundless national life, seen and unseen?

Agency of Church.

More than any other institution of civilization, the Caurch is the agency that injects equilibrium into the national life. Reaching back to the primal sources of that life, the Church, more than any other institution known to mankind, balances and steadles them.

Why not take steps here, then, for the had reached the vicinity of 8t. Paul's Church and the Cardinal's Cathedral, its red eyes straining toward the region of homes beyond, its red tongues leaping toward them as the tongues of sorpental leap for their prey. But across the path hung the gleaning cross, as if some power in the skies were saying. Not here, not here.

Buffled, the fire turned eastward. Here architecture had built its commercial masterpieces—granite and steel that stood out like fortresses against the invading foe. But one after another the fortresses were overrun. One after another the fortresses were overwhelmed. One after another they went down. And then, for a moment, the red eyes turned north, ward again. But there still gleamed the cross, the sign of the power in the skles that said, Not here, not here.

Eastward the fires turned again. Factory after factory went down. Werehouse after warchouse. Whole blocks; whole streets, But to the northward still gleamed the cross, and still it said, Not here, not here.

And not until the baffled fires had licked up, the wharves to the water's edge and gone out to sea did this emblem of our common faith cease to stend sentirel against a common danger.

Under Common Emblem.

Justice Brewer Reads Paper.

Justice Brewer Reads Paper. Justice David J. Brewer, of the United States Supreme Court, read a paper on "Law and Justice." He said: "I look and hope for a federation closer than that adopted by the conference. Very likely it was better to take a short step forward than to risk failure by going too far. The man who cannot work with Edward Everett Hale and Cardinal G-bhons has no clear conception of the goodness of God. I say that if all cannot admit the divinity of Christ they are yet all followers of his teader-ship."

BOARD MEMBERS

Such a step, however, will not be taken except after the most careful deliberations, and it may not be taken at all.

A compromise of this sort will be opposed in the board, and if made it is probable that several of willows will resign forthwith. Whatever the action it will be decisive of the fate of the class, and the issue will be awaited with the keenest interest throughout the State.

The New Paper.

The history of the V. M. I. outbreak is still fresh in the public mind. The action of the third class in coupling with its complaint against the food a threat of withdrawal from the Incitiute unless the conditions were improved, was held by the Board to be in direct violation of the regulations and destructive of all discipline. The offence lay not in the complaint, but in the existence of a conspiracy in the class to coerce the authorities of the Institute. The Board met. Investigated the food conditions, discovered that though not as good as they desired them to be, they were better than ever before, and thereupo demanded a retraction and apolegy from the cadets. All but thirteen signed a paper withdrawing the ultimatum they had sent. The thirteen expressed their sympathy with the withdrawal, but declared they were prevented by an oath signing. The Board held that the penalty of dismissal must apply to them nevertheless unless they signed. The remainder of the class thereupon recalled the retraction and announced that they would stand by the thirteen. The Board gave the boys ten The New Paper.

they signed the result of the record that they would stand by the nounced that they would stand by the thirteen. The Board gave the boys ten days in which to reconsider or leave the institute, and adjourned.

Governor Montague visited the school and exerted his good offices to relieve the situation, which become the sensation of the standard in the State. The task ernor has recoved to discuss the matter in any way, but it is said that it took hours of argument to bring the cadets around to the point at which he finally got them. According to report the paper he prepared for their signatures included a statement of "report". The cadets

Why not take steps here, then, for the process going on everywhere else? Why not a uniting Church? By a Church uniting, I do not mean that there shall be massed into one common form, either the polity or the beliefs of the individual churches. I would leave the churches as they are, each the chosen channel through which men seek communion with their Creator. But I would so adjust, and bakance, and mass their influence upon the life of the nation, that here, as in the civil sade of that life, while nothing was taken from the strength of the individual church, behind each ingride in the individual church, behind each ingride in the individual church, behind each ingride in the life of the nation, that here, as in the civil sade of that life, while nothing was taken from the strength of all the churches.

A year ago last February I happened to be in Baltimore on the night of the great fire. The fire had started in one of the older business sections of the city, and under a south wind, had crept northward, gathering volume and fury as its patient way lengthened. When we arrived it liad reached the vicinity of St. Paul's Church and the Cardinal's Cathedrel, its red eyes straining toward the region of homes beyond, its red toogues leaping.

CONNELSVILLE, PA., November 20.—
Last night's fire at the Overholt Distillery at Broadford, resulted in a loss estimated to-day at $1,600,000, including the tax on the whiskey lost. The warehouse '175 to 50 feet, was totally destroyed, but the distillery proper was not badly damaged. Manager C. W. Mauk estimates that 18,000 barrels of whiskey were destroyed.

IF THE WOMEN

Who suffer every month from aliments peculiar to their sex would only take an occasional dose of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters they would find their various organs strengthened and better able to perform their proper functions.
